EASTERN NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

The Graphic's Huge Balloon an Enormous Failure.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—An immense crowd visited the Capitol grounds, Brooklyn, this afternoon to witness the departure of the big balloon for Europe. The inflation commenced early this morning and continued till 10 minutes past 4, when the balloon suddenly swayed to the north, ripped half way round with a great tearing sound, and fell flat upon the ground. An immense volume of gas which had been pumped into it (nearly 400,000 feet) escaped at the same time, nearly suffocating those who stood near. Inspector Folk, Mr. Goodsell and Police Commissioner Briggs had but an instant before changed their positions to the eastward and thus escaped being buried in the netting and canvas. The crowd made a general rush toward the ropes with the intention of tearing the canvas into small pieces and carrying them off as mementoes, but a strong force of police drove them back. Mr. Steiner, who had the contract to fill the balloon, said it would be folly to attempt another inflation, as the balloon was not made of proper material and the enterprise is abandoned for the present.

Donaldson and Wise Won't Give Up that Air Ship.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Prof. Donaldson, the aeronaut, who was to have sailed for Europe yesterday in the Graphic balloon, says that immediately after the collapse of the first experiment Goodsell offered to begin at once the construction of a new balloon of silk provided Donaldson would engage to make the European trip in it. The offer was accepted, and the balloon will probably be ready for him about the middle of October. The car, life-boat and instruments which had already been provided will be used. Prof. Wise publishes a card defending the theory of a western air current and announcing his readiness to start for Europe at any time in a gas tight silk balloon. He also censures the attempts to turn a great scientific experiment and enterprise into a money-getting affair.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 12.—Dispatches from Shreveport to-day to Messrs. Nash and Hodgson, say the city is in great need of help. This time that Stockwell has cancelled his indebtedness to the Company by the transfer of 12,000 shares of its stock at par to be received in full for $800,000 due on his Sewing Machine Co. notes and on account of the Webb steamship purchases. It is generally understood, however, that this has not been completed, though the project is favored by certain Directors, and very strenuously opposed by others who are unwilling to let Mr. Stockwell thus make such easy compromise, claiming that it is unfair to the Company to take that amount of stock at par when the market value, say $40, could not more than half liquidate his obligations, and while it might temporarily put up the price of stock would depreciate its actual value.

Mrs. Ben Holladay Convalescent.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—To-day's [illegible] that its announcement yesterday of the death of Mrs. Holladay was erroneous, and says she is convalescent. This morning's advices from her residence confirm the statement that she has been very ill, but Dr. Sayre pronounced her condition improved. The principal difficulty seems to be a nervous depression and melancholy, consequent on the sudden death of her daughter, Countess de Pourtales.

Other prospectors report encouraging signs. Hallock & Co. are running four stamps night and day on paying rock.

On last Monday evening, about 9 o'clock, Mr. Chas. Stebbins, a blacksmith employed at Mr. Adamson's shop in Roseburg, stepped out of the rear door of the shop to carry in some wood, when a man standing in the shadow of the building dealt him a heavy blow on the head with a rock, felling him to the earth and rendering him insensible. Mr. Stebbins has no idea who the would be assassin is, and, therefore, can form no opinion why the assault was made upon him.

The Statesman of last Saturday, says: "We were shown yesterday at the office of the Secretary of State a pair of socks manufactured from the wool of Angora goats. The yarn was spun on a flax-wheel, and the socks knit by an old lady 70 years of age. Careful inspection of the socks show them to be superior in every respect to those of the ordinary kind, and from appearances they will wear a great length of time. We understand they will be on exhibition at the State Fair."

A remonstrance, signed by 420 tax-payers of Douglas county, was filed in the County Court against levying a tax to redeem the warrants, amounting to $15,000, issued by the County Court for the construction of a road from the town of Wilbur to a point five miles south of Roseburg. The County Judge decided that the faith of Douglas county has been fairly pledged for the payment of said warrants so issued, and that it is the duty of the Court to make a sufficient levy of tax for their payment.

Jonathan Card, an old gentleman living near Toledo, Yaquina Bay, had his leg broken on Tuesday of last week. He was falling a tree, when it suddenly slipped from the stump, falling on, and breaking both bones of the leg at the ankle. He lay three hours before assistance could reach him. Dr. Whitney, of the Siletz reservation, was called, who set the broken limb. Owing to the advanced age of the unfortunate man, it is feared the accident may prove fatal. At last accounts he was doing well.

The Statesman says: "There has been a tremendous rush of teams loaded with wheat to the Salem Mills lately, the good prices paid for wheat, $1—causing the farmers to be in something of a hurry to dispose of their grain. There have been received at the mill the past week over 24,000 bushels of wheat, being an average of 4,000 bushels daily. The mills are running steadily five run of burrs, and next week will have an additional run in operation. They grind into flour about 16,000 bushels daily, and ship the same to Portland and San Francisco."

The Roseburg Plaindealer says: "An exceedingly fine drove of mutton sheep, numbering some five or six hundred head, passed through the city on Tuesday last, on their way to Eastern Oregon. Douglas county now is the supply point for nearly the entire country east of the Cascade mountains, and already has the distinction of being one of the finest wool-growing counties in the State. Within a few years, now that our sheep-men have commenced introducing fine blooded sheep into their flocks, this county will lead the list in the matter of mutton and wool also. We have abundance of range, the best climate in the world and the requisite [illegible]; all that is needed is a little time."

The assessment roll of Lane county, for this year, shows the following statistical facts: 432,187 acres of land of the value of $1,655,908; town lots valued at $334,563; merchandise and improvements, $443,790; money, notes and accounts, $688,758; household furniture, etc., $207,132. The 5,404 horses in the county are valued at $196,684; the 14,784 cattle, at $109,090; the 26,052 sheep, at $54,945; the 9,652 swine, at $18,310. The gross value of property is $3,851,580. Indebtedness, $[illegible]783; exemption, $302,392. Total taxable property, $2,500,414. Number of polls, 1,348. The average value of lands, leaving out the [illegible] of the European and Oregon Land Co. and the O. C. M. Road Co., amounting to 70,303 acres, valued at $35,883, is $4.50 per acre.

The Siletz Indians are again dancing their so-called war dances. A letter in the Statesman says: "The Indians say they are not treated well this summer by the Bostons, and besides that they are sulix about the Modocs. One of the Indians said to-night that they would dance in spite of Fairchild—that he could not stop them. I do not consider the reports about the religious progress of Christianizing the Indians as a fair statement. The Indians seem to have their own ideas about their superstitious notions, and hold to them. They are, so far as I have talked with them, in direct sympathy with the Modoc prisoners, and say Captain Jack is a 'skookum tillicum,' and it don't make any difference how they kill him he will come back stronger than ever."

The State Board of School Land Commissioners, composed of Hons. L. F. Grover, Governor, S. F. Chadwick, Secretary of State, L. Fleischner, State Treasurer, with Thomas H. Cann, Clerk, have transacted the following business: In the case of Geo. Frock vs. W. Nus, Casper Snyder administrator, to settle the right of purchase of 300 acres of State land in Jackson county, laid over until next meeting. In the matter of the conflict between John Bear and John Norman for certain tide lands in Coos county, decided in favor of Norman. In case of Lobree, Norman, Sprague, et al. vs. Webster to settle title to tide lands; taken under advisement and deferred. In the case of Cozens and Ballon vs. Harris, in regard to title to tide lands near Empire City, deferred.

THEIR NAMES AND THEIR CIRCUMSTANCES.

The following is a list of the names of the men in the Republican Convention who voted for the resolution endorsing polygamy and declaring that it is upright and honorable conduct for a man to marry another woman while he has a wife living and undivorced, and to live under an assumed name and under a false name, to be elected United States Senator:

W. B. Carter, Sol. King and Julius Bronson, of Benton county; W. P. Burns, Gardner Elliott and J. L. Barlow, of Clackamas county; Philo Callendar and Charles S. Wright, of Clatsop county; David Bushey, of Coos county; W. R. Willis and J. B. Emory, of Douglas county; W. V. Reinhart, of Grant county; Wm. Turner, of Jackson county; J. M. Shelly, of Linn county; A. S. Patterson, C. W. Washburn, Johns Kelly, Marion Martin, John Vaughn and T. F. Rumsey, of Lane county; M. P. Berry, C. N. Terry, E. K. Miller, C. P. Crandall and Jos. Engle, of Marion county; J. N. Dolph, O. N. Denny, W. B. Daniels, M. F. Mulkey, T. B. Odeneal, G. W. Johnson, F. N. Shurtliff, E. J. W. Stemme, David Powell, P. M. Denny and J. D. Biles, of Multnomah county; G. Shurtliff, of Polk county; Hiram Towilliger, of Tillamook county; N. A. Cornoyer, of Umatilla county; Ben Simpson, (no residence;) M. Baker and A. W. Waters, of Union county; John C. Cartwright, of Wasco county; T. R. Harrison and Hussey, of Yamhill county.

The following is a copy of the resolution:

Resolved, That whatever may have been the misfortunes, faults or shortcomings of the Hon. J. H. Mitchell, U. S. Senator of this State, in his early private life, we neither apologize, pass judgment upon nor justify him, but express our unqualified belief that by his many years of consistent, upright and honorable conduct in this State he has outlived any imputations cast upon him, and that to-day not only the Republican party, but a large majority of the people of this State, have entire confidence in his integrity, ability and patriotism, and that he will faithfully and ably represent them in the United States Senate.

It will be observed that the list of persons voting for this resolution contains only forty-five names, and yet there were sixty-eight votes for it. It is interesting, therefore to inquire how forty-five men were enabled to cast sixty-eight votes for the destruction of the Republican party in obedience to the command of Senator Hipple. W. B. Carter, of Benton, had one vote as a proxy besides his own vote. A. W. Waters, of Union, held two proxies. Wm. B. Daniels, of Multnomah cast his own vote and that of two other persons. David Bushey, of Coos, cast his own vote, two by proxy, besides the vote of Curry county, which he was directed by the Convention to cast without any authority from the Curry county constituency. Mr. Busby has received the appointment of Collector of Customs for the Coos Bay [illegible] at the hands of Senator Hipple in recognition of his services in betraying the Republican party of Douglas county in September and assisting to elect Hipple to the United States Senate under his [illegible] of John H. Mitchell, was naturally anxious to secure all the proxies he could to be used in the service of his [illegible], and it was not unnatural that he should even consent to cast the vote of Curry county when the Republicans of that county had not designated him to do so.

W. R. Willis, of Douglas county, cast his own vote and voted upon the proxies of two other persons. Being a Federal office-holder, Receiver in the Roseburg Land-office, Mr. Willis was expected to vote [illegible] and obsequiously. J. B. Emory, of Douglas, also cast three votes in favor of this resolution. We believe Mr. Emory has not yet received his office, but he does not know Senator Hipple so thoroughly as not to rely upon his promises. He will get better acquainted with the Senator yet.

Major W. V. Rinehart of Grant county, Postmaster at the county seat, cast the vote of himself and Abram Eades. He is a gentleman of whom we entertain a very high opinion, and we can well believe he spoke sincerely when he said to different persons, both before and after the passage of the resolution, that it was wholly wrong for the Convention to saddle the crimes of John Hipple upon the Republican party. He opposed the resolution to the last in the Committee room, and said to his friends at different times, that he was voting for the resolution under compulsion. We do not know by what means he was thus compelled to cast his own vote and that of [illegible] old Abram Eades, who would have sooner lost his right arm than have put that ballot in the box for a resolution which he himself denounced as wrong; nor do we wish to inquire the relations he may [illegible] to the Hipple faction by which he could be thus forced to violate his convictions of duty to the party. From long years of personal acquaintance with Major Rinehart, we cannot believe that any selfish or mercenary motive influenced his conduct.

William Turner, of Jackson, besides his own vote, had three proxies. One of these was from Capt. J. M. McCall. Who supposes Capt. McCall would have cast such a vote? If the other two gentlemen whose proxies Mr. Turner held, are such men as we know Capt. McCall to be, no county in the State was more grossly misrepresented than Jackson. Mr. Turner also cast the vote of Josephine county, but was not authorized by the Republicans of that county so to do. The secret of his voting for the polygamy resolution, may be found in the fact that he is the recipient of valuable surveying contracts from Surveyor-General Odell, who was himself present at the Convention lobbying and logrolling with might and main, in the interest of our bigamous Senator.

J. M. Shelly, the only man of Linn county whose garments have any of the stain of this infamy upon them, is the business partner of Hiram—not John Hiram, but Hiram the nominee for Congress—and we don't blame him particularly for voting for this resolution, inasmuch as it was well understood that if the resolution passed no man but Hi. Smith would consent to run, and of course Mr. Shelly would see in the passage of the resolution a "dead thing" for Hi. (It will be deader still on the 13th of October next).

Mr. C. P. Crandall, of Marion county, held divers and sundry proxies. We have no reason to suppose he purloined them, but he is just the tool to be used upon such an occasion as that in question. He does not command the confidence of the Republicans of his own section. On account of some circumstances in connection with the Senatorial election of 1866, when Mr. Crandall was a member of the Legislature, he is in favor of anything in the way of pardon or oblivion for "youthful indiscretions" or "misfortunes," and if Madam Rumor is to be trusted, he knows how it is himself in regard to some of the "social sins" with which Senator Hipple stands charged.

Mr. G. Shurtliff, of Polk county, is father of Mr. F. N. Shurtliff, of Multnomah county. The latter is a Deputy Collector of Customs at Portland, Oregon, holding his position at the will of Senator Hipple; and father and son voted together for the resolution.

O. N. Denny is Police Judge of Portland, because the Holladay-Hipple ring were generous enough to buy illegal votes to elect him. He is a Director of the Bulletin Publishing Company, a lackey of Holladay's for all purposes, a "lame duck" in his own social history, and why should he not vote for oblivion or endorsement of Senator Hipple's crimes.

Mr. J. N. Dolph, sometimes called "Hangman Dolph," was full of proxies. This gentleman was voting on a salary from Ben Holladay, and were he not upon a salary, the commonest kind of gratitude would have required him to vote for the white-washing resolution, for all that he is as a politician and a lawyer he owes to John Hipple.

Ben Simpson turned up with a proxy from the extreme eastern portion of the State. He would doubtless have had some proxies from some of the counties in which he has been in the habit of claiming his residence in this valley, but for the fact that people in this valley have got to know him pretty well. Ben Simpson is one of those sheep that eat out an ordinary pasture very quickly. Tired of Thorn and bramble for pasturage, Ben has "gone to grass" east of the mountains.

John C. Cartwright, of Wasco or Yakima, we are not certain which, deserves great praise for his conduct. He denounced this resolution both before and after its passage as the "death knell of the Republican party." This he did in our presence, and in the presence of divers other persons. We do not know why John voted for the resolution under these circumstances, but it is some credit to a man to be able to discern right from wrong as clearly as John does after running with the Hipple ring as he has. Courage to do right is all he lacks of being a pretty fair man.

Mr. T. R. Harrison, of Yamhill, is not an office-holder, but he is not a man to be easily disgusted with false promises of position. He has sucked Hipple's dry teat for the Receivership of the Land Office at Oregon City ever since last October, and is sucking it still. This is all well enough if Mr. Harrison enjoys it, but when he seeks to force the Republicans of Yamhill county into the position of apologists, and even indorsers of the same crime for which a jury of that county sent a man to the penitentiary only a short time since, we shall be greatly surprised if they do not repudiate both him and the infamy he seeks to saddle upon them.

We havn't room for more at present. We shall return to the subject again, however, as it is by no means exhausted. It is plain that by every art known to the politician the Albany Convention was packed for the purpose of committing the party to the defense of the indefensible personal character of our bigamous Senator at the sacrifice of even the existence of the party itself. We do not assert at this time that the ring desired the defeat of the party, though there are many circumstances to which we shall refer hereafter, indicating that such was the case. Thus much is certain, however; the success of the party was a consideration of small moment in comparison with the success of the Hipple resolution and the destruction of the party was not to be weighed against the failure of that resolution.

WERE THEY NOT RIGHT?

The opinion of Hon. R. P. Boise, for years Chief-Justice of Oregon and the most eminent Judge that ever sat upon the Supreme bench of the State, is not to be cast lightly aside. He told the Albany Convention, when his name was presented as a candidate, that he could never consent to become the representative of a sentiment that set at naught the sacredness of the family relation, and substituted therefor open and bold polygamy. Nor could he indorse as political or personal integrity the deception practiced upon the Republican party of this State by a man who secured his election to the United States Senate under a false name. So spoke Hon. T. W. Davenport, Rich. Williams, Esq., Dr. J. W. Watts, all of them men of the highest standing in the party and men of unblemished personal character. Each and all of these gentlemen warned the Convention that it was useless to attempt to carry the election with this resolution, no matter who might be the candidate. No man could accept the nomination and avoid being identified with the sentiments of the resolution, and no man could go before the people successfully who had the resolution to carry. As Dr. Geary well said, the Convention exceeded its power, and its action was not binding upon any member of the party, when it undertook to make the party responsible for the private life of any man.

The Marysville Appeal publishes a pleasant reminiscence of Mr. Greeley's visit to California, illustrative of one of the great journalist's most prominent characteristics. It says that when Horace Greeley visited Yosemite he picked up in the trail a horseshoe and hung it on the knot of an oak tree for whoever might choose to use it. No one took it, and in time the knot grew over the horseshoe and recently the portion of the tree containing it was cut out and sent to San Francisco as a memento of Mr. Greeley's economy.

Iowa has determined to try a long-vexed question in jurisprudence. Her new code which went into operation on the first day of the present month takes away from the Governor the pardoning power in all cases of felony.

THE HIPPLE RESOLUTION.

How the Republican Convention was got to indorse polygamy.

Our bigamous Senator takes the field in person, and casts his crimes on the party that has honored him.

The people universally indignant.

The betrayer of the party steals away.

"They all do it," and "they know how it is themselves."

Is it true that all public men are criminals?

SALEM, Oregon, Sept 11, 1873.

Having been a looker-on at Albany during the session of that remarkable Convention which, a few days since, met to destroy the Republican party of Oregon, I desire the opportunity to transfer the scenes of that Convention to your columns, and to aid in the work of consigning the remains of the Mitchell-Hipple faction to most timely burial. I only wish that all faction could be forever buried, and the Republican party of Oregon stand with no fractional parts, as a harmonious, undivided, and, therefore, victorious whole; but in reciting this story of suicides, it is, at least, well to show what hand and what weapon dealt the blow.

The sun which shone at Austerlitz was not more propitious to the fortunes of Napoleon than might that which rose on the Albany Convention have been to the fortunes of the Republican party, save for the treason that hurled the apple of discord into its ranks, and made the success and honor of the party secondary to the personal ambition of one man, and the effrontery that gave that man's adherents and satellites power of voice to drown the appeals and protests uttered by the moral sentiment of a great people. We found no dividing sentiment as to the political principles to be enunciated; no formidable rivalry of candidates to cause disaffection; no local interests to clash and produce alarm; there were no clouds on the horizon to threaten, no causes for doubt or fear, for the last campaigns had been overwhelming successes, and the ability of the Republicans to elect was self-evident and satisfactory.

Such was the general aspect of affairs, when suddenly a cloud, no bigger than a man's hand, rose in the north and overspread the sky. The friends of Mitchell—yes, and Mitchell himself—demanded that the Convention, which had no other duty to perform than to frame a platform and nominate a candidate, should indorse him and make itself amenable for his trespasses and sins. The cloud became as black as Erebus, the infamous demand was finally passed to enactment, and I propose plainly to review the circumstances by which that was effected.

In this indictment of Mitchell, and his faction, I charge that having possession of the Government patronage, and having the employes of the railroad at command, taking advantage of the busy time of harvest, this faction took possession of the primaries in many of the counties, and so controlled this State Convention; that the leading Federal office holders of the State were present last Thursday instructed to force through this resolution of indorsement, and, as the Police Judge of Portland informed a Salem delegate who sugar-cures his hams but does not sugar-coat his politics, they were threatened with removal, every man of them, if this resolution was not passed. I charge that Mitchell himself was present in Albany, giving royal audience to faithful friends, using pleas, protestations, threats and curses by turns as occasion called for the exercise of his varied abilities, and that before his reign of terror Collectors of Customs quailed and country Postmasters trembled. It is true that about an hour before the Convention met he folded his tent—like the Arab — and silently stole away, but his body guard, consisting of Collectors from all the ports, Postmasters from the leading towns, officers of the Internal Revenue, Indian Agents, Postal Agents and Surveyor Generals, remained behind to retail his threats and his promises and to make duplicate copies of his pitiful pleas and excuses.

I solemnly charge that this Convention, which was ostensibly called to work for the Republican cause, was virtually made the contemptible instrument of John H. Mitchell's ambition, and that his personal ends are but answered by the shipwreck and defeat of the Republican party; that he naturally dislikes to have a Republican of pure character and influence go to Congress from Oregon, because that would inevitably deprive him of the Federal patronage and consign him to an obscurity to be relieved by no transient gleam of power. As the only Republican in Congress from Oregon, even the most pure-minded and dignified Senator and Cabinet Minister must recognize him, but a Republican Congressman would undoubtedly displace his power to give and dispense public patronage. This makes his recent action treason to the Republican party and justifies the assertion of the Convention in Washington county that he is our enemy. As proof additional that this Convention ceased to be a Republican Council and became a mere instrument in Mitchell's hands, I assert that one of his mercenaries used these very words: "By God, we will pass this resolution if it bursts the Republican party wide open." They said repeatedly in my hearing that the failure of the resolution would deprive the party of the votes of Mitchell's friends, and these facts give "confirmation strong as proof from Holy Writ" to this charge of treason to our cause.

There was no need of endorsing Mitchell's political principles, for they were not called in question. His private character was not the subject matter of this campaign; it might answer for a French romance, and it did awhile divide public attention with the fortunes of Capt. Jack, and it is more than probable that the texts furnished by the illustrated papers will yet culminate in the publication of some yellow-covered novel, not to exceed a dime in value; but his morals—thank the Lord for it!—have never been in the Republican platform—until now. It is true that some constitutions fatten awhile upon arsenic, but it proves a deadly poison in the end.

When I saw the fearful array of the Federal army wearing the Hipple blue and brass, and ran my eye down the long line of loyal postmasters, marshaled under the orders of that time-honored and battle-scarred Republican, Geo. E. Cole, I could only say,

> "Where was Nasby then?
> One blast upon his bugle horn
> Were worth a thousand men."

I desire to go back a few days in the March of Time, and call attention to the Democratic resolutions summing up the "misfortunes" of Mitchell, and which called for this defense at our hands. It is evident that the Democratic Convention was really ashamed of that resolution, for out of 120 delegates only 34 voted for it, while 28 voted against it, and 58 did not vote at all. Speeches were made of such a "sympathetic" nature that the late Mr. Hipple had reason to feel flattered rather than oppressed by this endorsement. Hon. Ben Hayden was both pathetic and sympathetic, and made appeals to his fellows that they all "knew how it was themselves;" that "people who lived in glass houses should not throw stones," and it was evident that with all his misquotation of Scripture the real sentiment of that convention was a recognition of Democratic proclivities and symptoms in our Senator, and I am not certain but a spark of envy entered into their resolution that his proclivities had had so much more success than their own. The action of the Democratic Convention was puerile, at the best, and true dignity of feeling as a party, would have dictated no reply.

The friends of Mitchell declined to go back of his Oregon life in their resolution, but I respectfully suggest that they should have grappled "manfully" with his first [illegible] "youthful indiscretion," and denounced the acts of that skilled enchantress, Sadie Hoon, who at the mature age of fifteen, wilfully went to school to a blushing youth of twenty-six, seduced him to her arms and stole from his embrace a germ of life that she encouraged until it became the pulse-beat of maternity. I give them credit for delicacy of expression and taste in the choice of words. "Misfortunes" is a word that has suffered much, but never more than at the hands of this Convention:

> "Take him up tenderly,
> Lift him with care."

Hereafter the "misfortunes" of Hipple will be more or less classic, and they may in time banish from sentimental minds the "sorrows of winter." This Convention, by its action, gives us free range to thrust his past in the face of the world, and Mitchell himself bullied it into giving him an endorsement that makes his past a living present to the Republican party. If any action on their part could have placated the indignation of an outraged people, it would have been

> "Owning his weakness,
> His evil behavior,
> And leaving, with meekness,
> His sins to his Savior."

The story of Damon and Pythias shows the power of friendship to sacrifice life for one who is beloved, and the conduct of many of the Mitchell ring shows that his friends laid their honor at his feet, and went about Albany on that fatal day of the Convention, prostituting themselves to his service devotedly. I heard several of them say that they were just as bad as he was, and they added, very gratuitously, that we all had done as bad things as Mitchell had. It was a common plea, made sometimes to large gatherings, "You know, gentlemen, how it is yourselves, only we hasn't been found out yet." The people should scorn the base imputations of these detractors, who are proud to share Mitchell's reputation with him, and wish to reduce public morality to the level of his achievements. Let them speak for themselves, or rather let them hide their diminished heads while the public indignation shall answer them.

I do not wish to undervalue the attachment and devotion of Mr. Mitchell's friends, nor to ignore the fact that he has magnetic powers that attach many friends to him warmly. I do not "set down aught in malice" against his friends, but this is a free fight, and sitting among the ruins of Carthage, I propose to treat fully on that "vaulting ambition" which has "o'erleapt itself," and show up the interested motives of those who having learned "to crook the pregnant hinges of the knee that thrift may follow fawning," have thought that the power to control Conventions was all that was necessary to control the votes of the people. I am one of the people, nothing more or less. I have only my vote, and my conscience to answer for the use of it, and the actions of Conventions, cannot lead me to the polls on the 13th of October to endorse John H. Mitchell. His friends have overshot the mark; they have "sown the wind" and they must "reap the whirlwind." It is true that

> "A fellow feeling makes men wondrous kind," and it may be reasonable that those who share Mitchell's fortunes, should also share what the Convention so gently terms his "misfortunes." But it does not sound nice for them to out-Herod Herod, and boast that they have out-Hippled Hipple, though I am prepared to believe that some of them have done it. The day may have gone by when it was advisable to

> "Assume a virtue if you have it not."

and the time has come, perhaps, instead, that Hamlet told of, when

> "Virtue itself of vice must pardon beg."

"Whom the gods wish to destroy they first make mad." When Mitchell and his men perpetrated this mad act they stood on the brink of a precipice which yawned before them the next morning when nominations were in order. The name of Hon. E. R. Geary of Linn county, was presented to the Convention, the ballots were cast and the actual count had commenced when he entered the room and stepping upon the platform asked leave to make a few remarks. His appearance commanded great respect, for his form and features indicate a noble manhood and his white hairs, frosted with many winters, do not impair but increase the sentiment. With great judgment and exceeding good taste he recited his devotion to Republican principles and their triumphs, gave his adhesion to the platform of the Convention, and added that the additional resolution touched upon a matter which he "held in abeyance." His firm withdrawal of his name left ghostly faces along the front benches, and the pallor increased when the count was completed and it appeared that Mr. Geary was almost the unanimous first choice of the whole Convention.

After half an hour of recess the Convention re-assembled, and nominations being in order, Dr. Watts of Yamhill, withdrew his name; T. W. Davenport of Marion, being placed in nomination, spoke at length as to the obnoxious resolution, predicted the certain defeat of the party, and repeated a recent conversation with Mr. Mitchell, when the latter said his endorsement was determined on by his friends and their support would attach to any suitable man who would assist it. He spoke to the point as to the presence of office-holders at the Convention, and said they ought not to be there. He explained that he was not used to "talking at a funeral" and declined to be a candidate. R. Williams, Esq., being placed in nomination, spoke admirably to the same effect. Judge Boise withdrew his name after giving a scathing review of the life in Oregon of Mr. Mitchell which they were called on to endorse.

Calamity after calamity fell upon that Convention, and the blind followers of the blind saw the pit into which they had fallen, which their own hands had dug.

The nomination was then tendered to Mr. J. N. Dolph, but he declined to mount the altar of sacrifice, saying he did so for "obvious reasons." He has broad shoulders, and he had been eloquent in advocacy of the resolution, but while he was willing to live for Mitchell he decidedly refused to die for him.

"To be or not to be" a candidate, that was the question. M. Baker, Esq., came down from Union county, eager for the nomination, and with fluent arguments why it should be awarded to Eastern Oregon. There it was going a begging and he did not stand ready to take it. Union county had another delegate named Simpson, whose personal appearance and manner of running Conventions ap-proxy-mated closely towards our own Ben. There was a nomination lying around loose and no Ben stood by to snatch it from destruction. If Caples had been there—Caples the stout of heart and the glib of tongue, constitutionally inured to hardship and exposure and never known to go back on Mitchell—the "misfortunes" of the latter would not have been increased by this day of more than double calamity. Caples would have manned the breach as the Roman Horatius manned the bridge, and the tide would have been stemmed. But Caples was only there by "proxy." Every hour has its man and the dark aspect of the last hour of that Convention brightened when it occurred to "Simpson of Union" that all was not lost, that there was still a name before the Convention, and with a ready wit that reminded us of his namesake of Benton, Marion and Multnomah, he sprang to his feet, and with that voice whose tones have so often drowned tumult and more often has occasioned it, he moved to nominate Hon. Hiram Smith, of Harrisburg, by acclamation and the Chairman catching the idea as if by inspiration put that question while it was warm, a few voted for it and a few voted against it and the result was declared as carried and Mr. Smith the nominee. The pascal lamb was found, and his blood and his money will be freely sacrificed for the sins of the people. A good man is to be sacrificed on the altar of another man's ambition. He has personal friends in abundance, he has excellent qualities of manhood, his devotion to Republican principles, his integrity of character, all entitle him to our respect, but no such considerations can atone for the fact that to cast a ballot for him on the 13th of October will be to endorse John H. Mitchell and make the Republican party responsible for his "misfortunes" and his crimes. They who pull down the house cannot complain if we leave them to be buried in the ruins.

If there is any way to get out of this difficulty the Republican party may yet unite to win a victory, but if the endorsement of Mitchell is the test of Republicanism I for one prefer to send him back to Washington, if he persists in going there, without the ability to boast that the subserviency of a packed convention had been endorsed by the voice of the people. I scorn the insinuation that the acts of this convention can bind us to the chariot wheels of this victor, whose election would never have happened had his true history been known. Even this convention had not dared to nominate him if he could have been eligible as a candidate. [illegible] and [illegible] on his part might lead us to consider that his sins were repented of, but this arrogance gives us reason to know that there is no repentance. I have had opportunity to ascertain the temper of the people and the [illegible] in execration of his cursed [illegible] and the hope is frequently expressed that the Senate will expel him.

When the Republican party in its integrity demands the vote of one who is proud of its history and devoted to its principles, who has never swerved from his allegiance but holds men secondary and principles first, it can always count on the vote of S. A. C.

To-morrow we shall present our readers with a list of the names of the delegates to the State Convention who valued the honor of the State and the success of the Republican party higher than the ambition of one man, or the favors a United States Senator might confer.

MONDAY MORNING SEPT [illegible] 1873

CITY.

Dr [illegible] Two young [illegible] of this gen[illegible] have [illegible] some [illegible] past entertained kindly feelings toward each other [illegible] yesterday one of them intimated his [illegible] he expected to meet him near [illegible] in the western extremity of the city at 10 o'clock on Sunday morning, there to [illegible] their difference in prize-ring style. The affair became known among the younger [illegible] and at the appointed hour [illegible] thirty or forty of the worst of the male [illegible] of the rising generation repaired to the spot. Promptly at 10 o'clock the antagonists faced each other and a brutal fight ensued resulting in one of the young men having his head and face battered in the most approved pugilistic style when deeming discretion the better part of valor he cried enough and the affair was at an end. The arrangements for the fight were matured with so much secrecy that the encounter came off without exciting the attention of the "stars." We withhold the names of the belligerents in the hope that we will not be again called upon to chronicle such barbarous con[illegible] rendered the more outrageous by the selection of the Sabbath for displaying such brutal [illegible] Boys you are rapidly qualifying yourselves for the Penitentiary and the sooner you forsake such evil ways the better for yourselves and friends

A TERRIBLE FALL.—Yesterday morning Capt Daniel Wright who is well known in this city as a contractor and wharf builder met with a terrible accident by which his life is almost despaired of. Capt Wright had climbed up some distance on a pile driver that stood near the lower sawmill in order to loosen some of the tackle. After reaching a height of about twenty four feet he lost his footing and fell to the bottom of the boat. He struck directly on his feet. One leg was badly broken the bones of the thigh being shockingly mangled by the force of the fall. Other injuries of a serious character were sustained. He was removed as carefully and speedily as possible to his home. Dr Chapman was summoned and subsequently Dr Kinney. Everything was done which could alleviate the sufferings of the injured man. His injuries are regarded as very serious, with but little prospects of recovery. If the condition of Capt Wright will at all permit of the operation, the mangled limb will be amputated to-day

PASSENGERS.—The steamer John L Stephens which sailed for Portland on Saturday, brings the following passengers: Judge Upton, B B Graham, Lieut W Purnell U S A and wife, B Blumauer, B Bettman, B N Stamps, J M Mountain, A B Trossman, A Goldsmith, A N Gilbert, M A Shepard, Jacob Miller, I A Dollman, H J Price, L D Manor, G A Fox, H Ackerman, J Ackerman, L Thinhauser, S Falk, Emil Frank, G Roys, C D Grover and wife, G E Kelly, William Davis, P J Keller, B Selling, J Selling, E Hirsch, M Meyer, J J Dalrimple, Mrs G L Davis, Mrs M J Da[illegible] and child, I S [illegible]ley and wife, J P McFadden, E S Kearney, James Williams, William Harper, Miss Minnie Baxter, Mrs J A Bostwick, L E Manley, G E Townsend and wife, Charles E Botsford and wife, Miss B C Nichols, Mrs. Ireland and 4 children

PUSHING AHEAD.—Work in the Third Ward is moving rapidly ahead. Mr Wilcox has commenced the erection of a three-story building for Mr James Thompson, of boarding-house notoriety, opposite No. 4's engine house, where, in a short time, the "boys" will again be [illegible] with [illegible]. Mr C C Bunnell will also commence this morning to clear away on the same block from Front to First streets, for his new brick market

LEG BROKEN.—As will be observed by the State telegraph published elsewhere Mr Hallett, the well known railroad contractor, was thrown from a gravel train near Roseburg on Saturday evening. One leg was broken and other injuries received. If his injuries will allow, Mr Hallett will probably be brought to this city in a few days. A Chinaman was also thrown off at the same time and it is thought fatally injured.

CLACKAMAS BRIDGE.—Work on the Clackamas bridge is progressing quite rapidly. The [illegible] work has been nearly completed and the [illegible] spanned from pier to pier. In a few weeks the bridge will be covered and the plank [illegible] laid [illegible]. A number of carpenters are employed at the work, and an early completion of the bridge is promised

TOWED DOWN.—Yesterday the Clara Louise, Capt. Forbes in command, was towed down the river by the tug Ben Holladay. She was taken down as far as Columbia City, where a deck load of lumber will be taken on board for Honolulu. In a short time the Clara Louise will complete her cargo and will sail for the Sandwich Islands.

LOCOMOTIVE.—A large locomotive for the Northern Pacific Railroad was brought up on the bark Rival and landed at Kalama. The locomotive and tender weighs about fifty tons. In a short time the rolling stock of this road will not be inferior to that of any other road on the coast

FISHED OUT.—A drunken individual on a [illegible] at the foot of Morrison street rolled into the river on Saturday night. Officer Mercer heard the splash, and repaired to the scene in time to save the devotee of Bacchus from a watery grave, through the medium of boat-hooks

APPOINTED.—At a meeting held by the British Benevolent Society on the 3d instant Dr James Dickson was appointed an honorary medical officer of that society

READY FOR SEA.—The bark Otego is now lying at Astoria. She has completed her cargo of grain and will proceed to sea at the first opportunity

The latter on being relieved will proceed to Portland, Oregon, to relieve Major Henry Robert [illegible] duties, including that of Lighthouse Engineer for the Thirteenth District. Major Henry Robert is ordered to Milwaukee as Lighthouse Engineer of as much of the [illegible] District as may be assigned to him by the Secretary of the Treasury.

BODY FOUND

THE REMAINS OF AN UNKNOWN MAN [illegible] [illegible]

During Saturday afternoon [illegible] well known gentlemen of Portland [illegible] walking through the [illegible] west of Marquam Gulch [illegible] remains of an unknown man [illegible] had been [illegible] along the Marquam road [illegible] at and [illegible] highway and [illegible] the timber by way of [illegible] east [illegible] the railroad track and past [illegible] rushers house. The route was [illegible] rugged but much [illegible] road. After [illegible] made their way [illegible] logs through [illegible] brush [illegible] rocks and the natural [illegible] down to the bottom of the ravine [illegible] that towards the western limit of the city. When they had traveled some little distance along the ravine they were confronted by two large fir trees whose prostrate trunks lay across each other almost parallel. Clambering over the logs these gentlemen discovered to their very great surprise the remains of a man lying lengthwise between the two where they [illegible] These persons [illegible] without disturbing or making an examination came to the city and notified officer Brannan. That officer communicated the intelligence to the Coroner but as it was late and the spot secluded and very difficult to reach it was determined to defer the inquest to the following day

Early yesterday morning Coroner Dreyer accompanied by officer Brannan, the undertaker, H Cook, the two gentlemen who discovered the remains as guides and several other persons repaired to the spot. The locality was reached with much labor and no little difficulty as the party started at the foot and followed the ravine up. On reaching the spot where the remains lay the Coroner proceeded at once to impanel a jury and to make the necessary examination

From appearances, it would seem that the body had laid there for one year at least. All the flesh had wasted away or had shrunk or dried to nothing. The bones of the body still hung together and were encased in the clothes with the exception of the skull which had been detached from the neck and was lying near the right hip. There were neither hair nor skin adhering to the skull. A pistol—one of Colt's large-sized navy—was found lying on his left breast. The weapon was very much corroded and a quantity of hair was attached to it. At the time of his death the deceased had on a black pair of trowsers, a dark colored coat and a checked woolen shirt, all of which were very much faded by exposure to the elements. A large round hole was made through the bone of the skull in the center of the forehead. In the rear portion of the skull a similar hole was found. This fact together with the position of the revolver and one of the barrels being empty while the remaining ones were heavily loaded confirmed the idea that the individual in a fit of mental despondency or during temporary insanity, had placed the weapon to his head and blowed out his brains. Three large fractures were observed radiating in as many directions from the place where the bullet entered the skull, while at the point where the leaden messenger of death passed out, the bone was badly shattered. Instant death must have followed the discharge of the weapon. An umbrella was found lying along his right side, with the forearm and hand resting diagonally across it. Imbedded in a small circular opening in the handle of the umbrella and covered with glass was the likeness of Horatio Seymour. Such pictures were frequently seen on cane heads and umbrella handles, during the Presidential campaign of 1868. On the left foot was a very heavy thick soled boot and on the right a light shoe. In the breast pocket of the coat was an old memorandum book which was so wasted by exposure and contact with the body as to be almost wholly undecipherable. It was written all the way through, but nothing connected could be made out. Occasionally a few words could be distinguished, but they were written in the German language, from which fact there can be but little doubt but what the owner belonged to the Teutonic race. From a few stray locks which were gathered up, it was ascertained that the hair was a light auburn. Six corroded half-dollars and four five-cent pieces were found in one of the pockets. Also in another pocket, inclosed in a small india rubber bag a number of papers were found, most of them in a good state of preservation. Among these papers were found several lottery tickets, and three street car tickets. A piece of paper was likewise found on which was written some English poetry, but it was so soiled and blurred as to be wholly illegible. On his person was found a bill from some brewery (name could not be traced out) in Olympia that was dated Sept 16 1872. The name of the person to whom the bill was made out, could not be read. On the front page of the memorandum book before alluded to, was written the letters L C followed by a name commencing with Ha, the remaining letters being obliterated. The words Port Angelos, 1872 were also found written quite plainly in another place. Nothing more definite could be discovered which could throw any light on either the name of the person or the manner of his death. There can remain but little doubt but what it was a case of deliberate suicide. There is a bare possibility that the man was murdered but all the circumstances would tend to disprove such a conclusion. As only a few bones remained and the inaccessibility of the spot rendered their removal a very difficult task the Coroner caused the remains to be interred immediately where they were found. In view of all the facts which were elicited on the examination the jury rendered the following verdict:

The undersigned jurors summoned by the Coroner of the county, T J Dryer, to inquire in regard to the death of a person found dead in a ravine south of the city of Portland, find that the deceased whose name is unknown to us came to his death from a pistol shot through the head, but whether by his own hand or that of some other person we are unable to ascertain

OUT DOOR SPORTS

The first and second nines of the Pioneer Club play next Saturday probably

The cricket match last Saturday resulted in favor of the married eleven, as will be seen by the score: Married Eleven—Runs 84, byes [illegible], leg byes 1, wide balls [illegible], no ball 1, total [illegible]. Single Eleven—Runs 76, byes 11, leg byes 1, wide balls 4, total, 92. Two innings were played by each side. Mr Burton acted as umpire. A third game will be played next Saturday which no doubt will prove the most interesting as it will be the deciding contest of the series

Last Saturday another victory was added to the already long list of the Pioneer Club. We have heard a number of persons express wonder as to where all the wheat comes from which is pouring in every day from up the country. If such persons would take a ride of one hundred miles up through the valley and see the immense quantities of grain standing in the fields or being threshed their surprise would cease at once

A GOOD WORD FOR BEN BUTLER

James M Scovil [illegible] for the [illegible] Butler [illegible] in this week's [illegible] the New York Herald

[illegible] Butler [illegible]

[illegible]

Butler's wonderful [illegible] to newspaper [illegible] has created a sentiment against him in the minds of those who are slow to think of the [illegible] but very swift to swallow the evil that is said of public men.

I speak as an unprejudiced observer now dissociated from politics when I state his cover[illegible] purest of political saints the anti-Butler coalition which is busy in blackening and characterizing Ben Butler as the chiefest of sinners

And I venture with becoming modesty the prediction that if Ben Butler is made the next Governor of Massachusetts that ancient and noble Commonwealth (the home of my ancestors for three generations) will never be ashamed of the man who at Baltimore and elsewhere did his duty so well in sustaining the nation's honor that he can proudly say "Reputation is what men says of us, character is what God thinks of us"

GARTERS.—A Nelson street dry goods man who is well known for his politeness has a father who is an excellent citizen but not a very smooth talker. They were so busy at the store Saturday afternoon that the old gentleman was called in to help. Among the customers was a young lady who appeared to be waiting to trade with him, whose elderly appearance invited her confidence. So in an opportunity offered and leaning over the counter as an invitation for him to do the same she whispered her order. He bent closer to her and said "What's that?" in a voice that startled the perspiration to her forehead. Again she whispered. "Oh elastic," said he in a tone that could be heard on the walk and looking much pleased with his success. "What kind of elastic?" he added, bending his head closer to the burning face of the perspiring young maiden. Once more she tremblingly whispered. "For garters hey?" he repeated even louder than before without noticing the horror-struck expression of the almost fainting young lady. "Something fancy I suppose," he went on to say in happy oblivion of the store full of people. "Young people now-a-days wants something nice. My old woman uses a shoe string and sails around without noticing the difference." Then he got down with the box and turned around to show it, but the customer was gone. He stood around with the elastic some five minutes in waiting but she did not return and it's likely he has forgotten all about the circumstances now.—Danbury News

THE BURNING OF CHICAGO.

Exhibitors of shows in are pretty sharp as regards the almighty dollar and do not stop at trifles or even larger objects when they take a notion to their heads. A show sharp named Baum has been treating the London public with a sight which must have originated in a Yankee brain—a facsimile of the burning of Chicago. The idea is an original one and whether the exhibitor makes money from it or not he deserves to do so. A correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial writing from London July 19th gives this picture of a scene which not long since was the great sensation of the times not only in this but on the European continent.

The greatest thing to be witnessed at the gardens is that designated as The Burning of Chicago. At the end of an acre of green sward one sees the brilliant city with its fine halls, and spires rising up to a height of three or four stories and a hundred yards in width. In the street in front men, women and children are promenading, and omnibuses and carriages are dashing in a still [illegible] all unsuspicious of impending calamity. Then presently in an upper story window there is a lurid glimmer, then a cannon announces by its thunder that the fire has broken out. Each house as it catches fire lets off a tremendous lot of fire works, and it is astonishing how many fire-crackers there were stored up in Chicago. Any city with so many fire-crackers might regard itself as doomed. As the conflagration proceeds the sides of the houses fold themselves down like so many maps, disclosing within their skeleton frames and also a large number of busy persons who at first glance appear to be firemen trying to save the city, but on closer [illegible] are seen to be bold, bad incendiaries, intent on its destruction, and letting off fire works which they must have arranged before-hand with malicious purpose. The fire, not to be resisted by such traitors, gains its way, reaches a big church whose two towers have a strong resemblance to those of Westminster Abbey. The towers sink down, apparently in the ground, safely, pleasantly as if they meant to rise again. Other chunks descend as quietly as forlorn coons before the devouring element, but each letting off a number of fireworks. The crowds, while witnessing this [illegible] event—at three pence a head extra—give vent to their emotion in tears, though it may be said that one only sees these tears as they are being wiped away afterward, and that in the previous darkness, the sounds pre[illegible] them are rather of the hysterical kind. The [illegible] succeeds a similar one, representing the siege of Strasburg, which run this all the late season. I have my doubts if [illegible] the exhibition can pay for the [illegible] nightly in red and blue lights involved, and suspect that M. Baum keeps it up and [illegible] it on late in the evening, because it is [illegible] to the [illegible] Canon and his friends who stopped his dancing, and being very [illegible] may have a chance of interfering with innocent slumbers.

A Memphis dispatch of Sept. 7th says: [illegible] ten days since quite an excitement was [illegible] in the [illegible] suburbs by the arrest of [illegible] White, a prominent citizen, on a charge of [illegible], and within a few days no less than a [illegible] specific charges for similar [illegible] the public. He was remanded [illegible], without bail. This afternoon his wife [illegible] to see him, and spent half an hour with [illegible] and then came to the grating and asked [illegible] out. When the guard opened the [illegible] White presented a cocked revolver at his [illegible] said "Let me out or die!" The [illegible], and White, darting out [illegible] in waiting and dashed off [illegible] could be given. Pursuit was [illegible] as possible, but up to dark [illegible] recaptured. His wife had [illegible] the [illegible] enveloped in her panier, [illegible] "She was arrested."

A feel[illegible] and mutual congratulation is [illegible] the turn of affairs, the power of the [illegible] and found to be much [illegible] had been supposed. When the Gold [illegible] to 114½ yesterday, a good [illegible] that it was a part of the [illegible] to obtain a better hold of the [illegible] would be a prompt reaction [illegible] they were mistaken as Gold [illegible] to 113¾ by noon, the closing [illegible]. It will be [illegible] temporarily in a single registered five per [illegible] to await the action of Congress. The [illegible] has been managed with great tact and with[illegible] disturbing the market.

[illegible] Wool Market.

The Wool market at New York, as will be seen by our dispatches, is maintaining a very firm tone, and fine [illegible] of Pacific coast Wools are in active [illegible]. In some cases extreme rates have already [illegible] paid for the fall clip. The Call of the 9th has [illegible] from New York, which say some choice [illegible] are being [illegible] for that market at as high as [illegible] in Gold, and even 16c, and as high as 18½ Gold [illegible] is said to have been paid in California for a select [illegible]. There have been sales of 1,500 bales of va[illegible] grade of California, at 27@34c as to grades and [illegible], part [illegible] Reports from the Woolen [illegible] trade continue favorable. The imports in [illegible] Dry Goods at San Francisco in August [illegible] to $15,[illegible], showing a decrease as compared with the same month last year, of five and [illegible] fourths millions dollars. The decrease since [illegible] is $19,[illegible],000.

In the Boston market the demand for domestic [illegible] continues active, with some speculative inquiry. Manufacturers, however, take most of the wool sold. The tendency of the market is in favor of higher prices. There has been a further advance in fine fleeces double extra and treble extra and picked lots having sold at 57½c per pound against 52½ a few weeks ago. The transactions in California wool during the past week have reached upwards of one million pounds and stock is fast disappearing. Unwashed Western Colorado and Nevada sells at 25@31½c scoured. Oregon [illegible] superfine and extra [illegible] California spring, [illegible].

The Philadelphia wool market is quite firm; holders are demanding an advance. California washed [illegible] unwashed 23@25c; extra and merino pulled [illegible] Texas fine and medium [illegible] coarse [illegible]; California, fine and medium [illegible] coarse [illegible].

Eastern Wheat Market.

Advices from New York to the 6th inst [illegible] that there has been an unwonted activity in the demand for flour and wheat for export to the United Kingdom and the Continent, and with the market almost bare of supplies transactions have been mainly for forward delivery at an advance of [illegible] cents on flour and [illegible] cents on wheat. This activity and buoyancy is the [illegible] of the unfavorable cable advices, which [illegible] indicate even a greater deficiency in the harvest of Western Europe than the [illegible] fully prepared [illegible] of the best authorities [illegible] foreshadow. Not only does this [illegible] of wheat in [illegible] and portions of the continent [illegible] but the [illegible] serious damage from the [illegible]. They are having in England [illegible] weather for harvesting. Events may thus [illegible] that the fears entertained regarding the general result of the foreign harvest are somewhat overdrawn, but meanwhile exporters are disposed to discount on the future as indicated.

The condition of the English wheat market is summarized by a leading authority as follows: The total acreage in wheat in Great Britain is 3,300,000 acres, or 500,000 less than last year. The yield is 28 bushels to the acre, making an aggregate of 11,500,000 quarters. Of this amount, 1,000,000 quarters will be required for seed. The consumptive wants are 2,000,000 quarters, leaving a deficiency of 11,000,000 quarters to be supplied by importations from abroad. A year ago the same authority estimated the foreign requirement to be 1[illegible],000,000 quarters for the crop year while the quantity actually imported during the first [illegible] months was [illegible] quarters. Of that quantity California contributed about 2,000,000 quarters. It is feared that she will not this year [illegible] more than [illegible] quarters and possibly not more than [illegible] quarters.

Home Produce Market.

Our produce market is without any feature of importance [illegible] since yesterday. The [illegible] of wheat is rather less [illegible] [illegible] in prices is noted. At last [illegible] less disposition [illegible] large lots. [illegible] contracts at the present time. [illegible] [illegible] is [illegible] of the injury in a few days.

Aside from the talk about wheat, the produce market offers nothing worthy of particular note, quotations remaining at the same figures given by us on Friday. A large portion of the local demand is supplied by wagon [illegible] which sell their products at constantly varying prices and for which it is impossible to give exact quotations. There was an unusual number of these wagons on our streets to-day giving the market an appearance of activity.

Portland, Oregon, Aug. 22 1873.

MR. SAMUEL CORWIN—Sir: In justice to yourself and for the benefit of those who may be afflicted with the small pox I am induced to give publicity to the following facts. About the 20th of July 1873 I became very unwell, having severe pain in my head, back and limbs which continued to increase in severity for three or four days, a very high fever set in and I began to break out on my face, neck and body with what proved to be small pox. I procured of Dr. Freeland of the Central Drug Store a bottle of your small pox remedy. Notwithstanding the severity of the attack I administered the medicine myself [illegible] with accompanying [illegible] loss. In three days all pain and fever disappeared. My recovery was extremely rapid, notwithstanding frequent exposures by moving about from place to place while in a high fever, which is generally considered fatal in this disease, and it is my firm conviction that under the ordinary treatment for that disease I would not be living to-day. I took of the medicine about two and a half bottles, more perhaps than was necessary, not wishing to discontinue until thoroughly cured.

PETER BURK

I know of my own knowledge that the foregoing statement is true in every particular.
